EVENTS

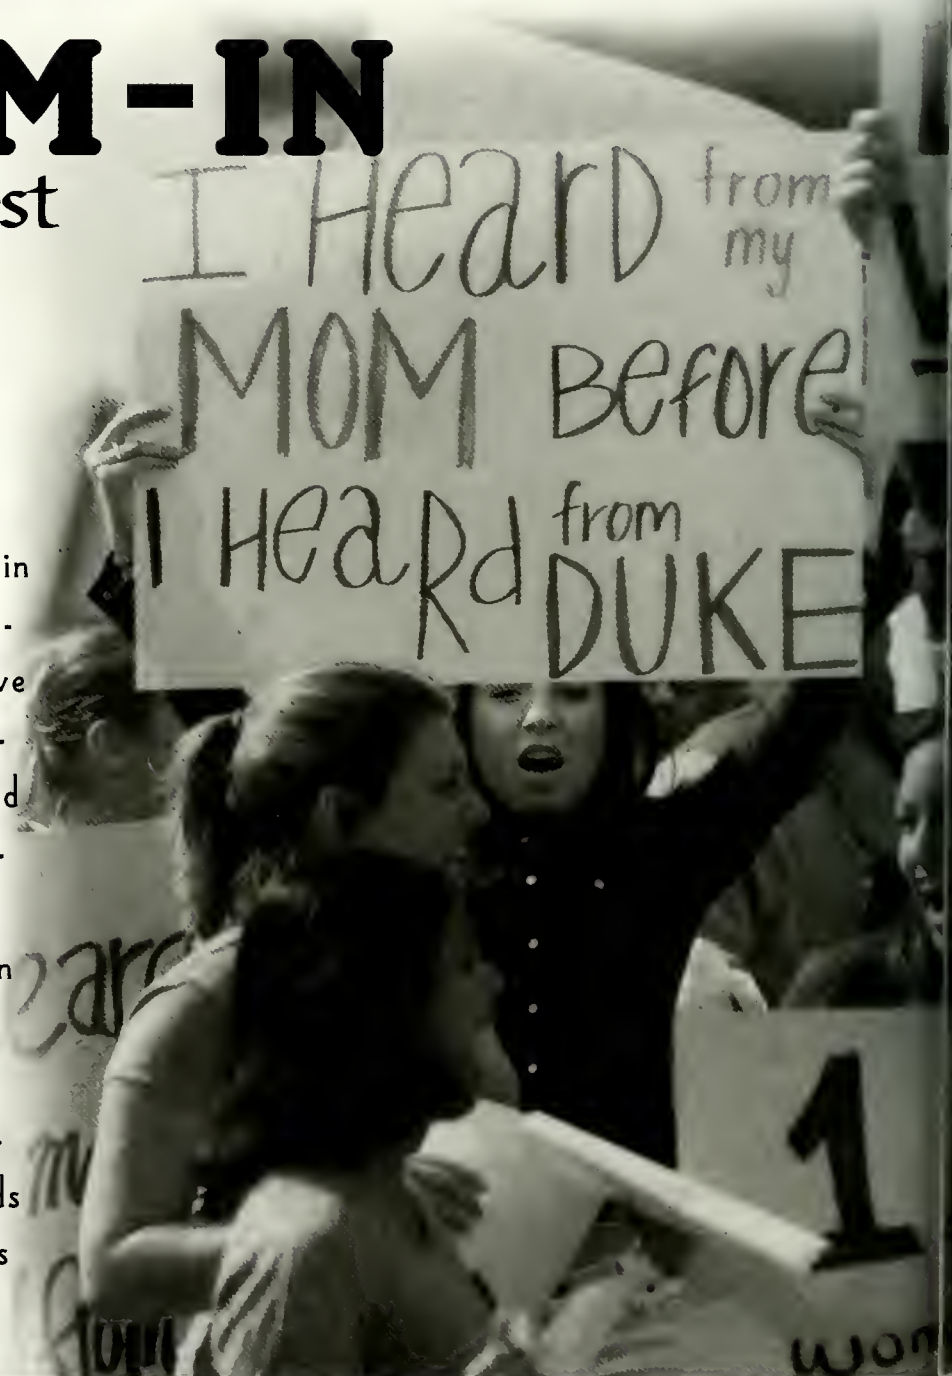

SCREAM-IN

Sexual Assault Protest

Approximately 100 men and women, bearing white arm bands and signs, gathered on the chapel steps to protest in response to recent sexual assaults on campus and administrative failure to notify the Duke community in a timely manner. In addition to speaking out, the protesters screamed for five minutes. Freshman Alessandra Colaianni, organizer of the protest, intended the scream-in to be a "visible and audible" embodiment of the violent crime.

"These are the screams of women who are being sexually assaulted," Colaianni declared to the crowd. "These are screams of anger at the pervasiveness of rape and violence towards women at Duke. These are the screams you do not hear often enough."

DEVIL'S EVE

sponsored by Campus Council

This year, the annual event was held on Halloween night. The band "Appetite for Destruction" provided entertainment in addition to the inflatable games, including slides, obstacle courses and bungee netball. Students could also take a ride on the spinning tea cups, have their caracture drawn and buy alcohol on points.

BEN STEIN

As the teacher in "Ferris Bueller's Day Off," the host of "Win Ben Stein's Money" and Clear Eyes spokesman (not to mention the valedictorian of Law School, speechwriter for presidents Nixon and Ford, author of seven novels and nine nonfiction books), Stein imparted witty humor and advice he would have had known as a college student onto the Duke community.

JOHN LEGUIZAMO

With a Heineken in hand, the Latino actor, best known for his roles in Romeo and Juliet, Super Mario Bros., Moulin Rouge and Freaky Friday, took the stage. With a dash of crude humor to color the serious moments, Leguizamo recounted his career and life story "not as an example but as a horrible warning."

M.L.K. DAY

The events commemorating Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. included panel discussions, speakers and performances by Dance Black, United in Praise and Duke Capoeira.

DANCE SLAM'S "HEAT"

This year's title for Dance Slam's spring show, "Heat," captured the energy of their performances. The group primarily focuses on jazz, lyrical and hip-hop dance styles. However, "Heat" also featured lyrical and Fosse-based choreography, as well as several guest performers, including male swing dancers, a belly dancer and the Alpha's Step Team. Completely student-led, the currently female-dominated organization is open to all students, including men and graduate students.

DEFMO SHOWCASE

Through the medium of dance, Defining Movement promotes the ideals of unity, acceptance, diversity, service and multiculturalism. Defmo's Spring Showcase, the group's culminating event, featured various styles of dance, including jazz, hip-hop, ballet, pop, lyrical and belly-dancing. While donning original costumes, the dancers incorporated fedoras, sticks, veils, towels and masks into their choreography. The dynamics of the show ranged from upbeat (such as "Why Be Normal" and a Justin Timberlake medley) to strangely poetic ("Deep Forest") to sexy and aggressive (Christina Aguilera's "Fighter" and En Vogue's "Free Your Mind") to eerily sensuous (Conjure One's "Sleep").

DUKE PLAYERS LAB THEATER

"Variations on the Death of Trotsky" puts a comic twist on the assassination, opening with Trotsky writing at his desk with a mountain climber's axe still in his skull. "Tape" looks at betrayal among friends from both comedic and dramatic perspectives.

OLD DUKE PARTY

Students assembled on the Main Quad to resurrect old traditions. The evening's festivities featured March Madness on a projection screen, live music and food. For those 21 and over, the most celebrated element was the reappearance of kegs back out on the quad.

HIP HOP CONTEST

JIMMY CARTER

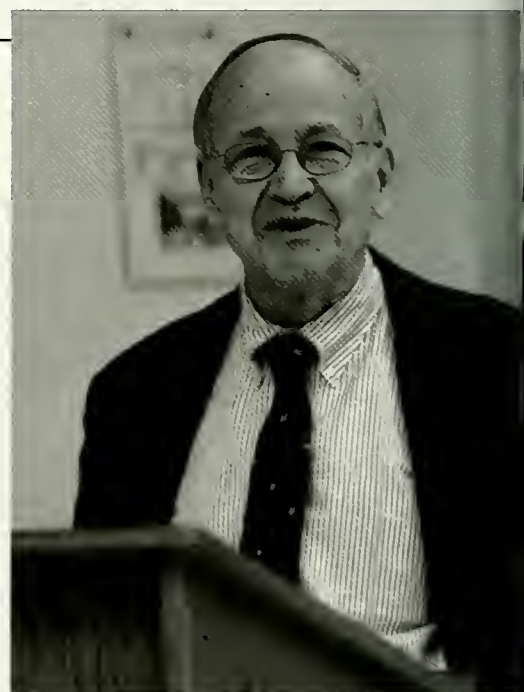

The former President of the United States arrived at The Regulator Bookshop to sign his first of fiction, "The Hornet's Nest: A Novel of the Revolutionary War."

MEASLES INITIATIVE

The Duke Measles Initiative aimed to increase awareness within the community and to fundraise for vaccinations for children of economically-disadvantaged nations.

"Those of us who are so fortunate have an obligation, as well as a human drive, to help the children of other countries," said Dr. Samuel Katz, developer of the measles vaccine.

Organizer of the campaign, Karthik Balasubramanian concluded the lecture with passionate words, "[The Measles Initiative] is something that we can come together as a human race to do now... When you consider all the world's problems, [measles] is just a drop in the bucket. Call me ridiculously optimistic, but our vision is that every child in the world will have the shot at life."

NIKKI GIOVANNI

No question was too controversial for this poet, author and activist. As Duke's 2004 Black History Month Keynote Speaker, Giovanni read poetry and tackled the audience's questions about such topics as hip hop culture, gay marriage and slavery. Her words were insightful, inspirational and powerful: "If educated people are not going to be at the forefront of the fight for human justice, then what was the point of your education?"

DR. RUTH WESTHEIMER

The psychosexual therapist launched the field of Media Psychology in the 1980's with her radio program "Sexually Speaking," which began as a 15-minute taped show that aired in New York. Westheimer has also pioneered the spread of what she has termed "sexual literacy." She also has a nationally and internationally syndicated show on Lifetime called "The Dr. Ruth Show."

BLACKBURN LITERARY FESTIVAL

Beginning in 1959 as the Archive Festival (named after Duke's literary magazine), the annual, student-run Blackburn Literary Festival was renamed in 1991 to honor its founder. Professor William Blackburn taught Elizabethan poetry and creative writing at Duke in the 1930's.

Joyce Carol Oates

For 23 volumes of short stories, seven volumes of poetry, four volumes of plays and more than 30 novels, Oates has received many honors. These include a Pulitzer Prize nomination, a bestseller and National Book Award finalist for "Blonde" and the PEN/Malamud Award for "A Lifetime of Literary Achievement."

Orson Scott Card

"Ender's Game" in 1986 and "Speaker for the Dead" in 1987 made Card the first author to win the Hugo and Nebula awards for best novel two years in a row. His work includes plays and novels of several genres and forms, including fantasy, contemporary and the retelling of ancient scripture as science fiction.

Alice Walker

Best known for "The Color Purple," Walker read poetry and shared her inspiration for becoming a writer and activist. She also spoke on topics ranging from interracial marriage to war. "You can't change anyone's mind by killing someone," Walker said. "You kill them, and they die with the same thought."

Margaret Atwood

For the past 30 years, Atwood has written fiction, poetry, social history, criticism and children's books. "One works by simple observation, looking into things," Atwood, an activist and former president of PEN Canada, said. "It's usually called insight and out of that comes your view -- not that you have the view first and then squash everything to make it fit."

MARGA GOMEZ

The openly-lesbian, latina comedian targets everyone regardless of sexual orientation, ethnicity or appearance "with devastating one-liners, fabulous characterizations, political satire and a pinch of smut." Appearing on HBO, Showtime, PBS, Comedy Central and in the movie "Sphere," Gomez has also written and performed six one-person, Off-Broadway shows.

AMY WINFREY

The creator of Muffin Films, Big Bunny, and Making Fiends presented never-before-seen animation shorts. Her Web sites have become a common source of random hilarity for college youth. Winfrey has also written for Southpark.

LAST DAY OF CLASSES

sponsored by Campus Council

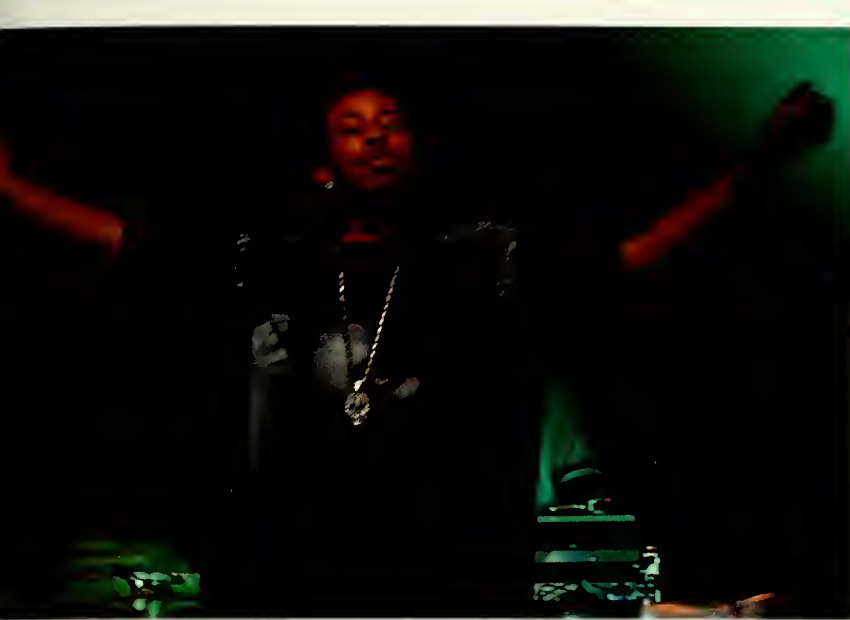

Ironically, the new album put out by the Last Day of Classes' featured artist was entitled "College Drop Out." Students sporting T-shirts with a cover design based on Kanye West's latest album crowded the campus waiting to get a glimpse of the hip-hop artist. Street dancers and opening bands kept them entertained until the main act.

ON TAP

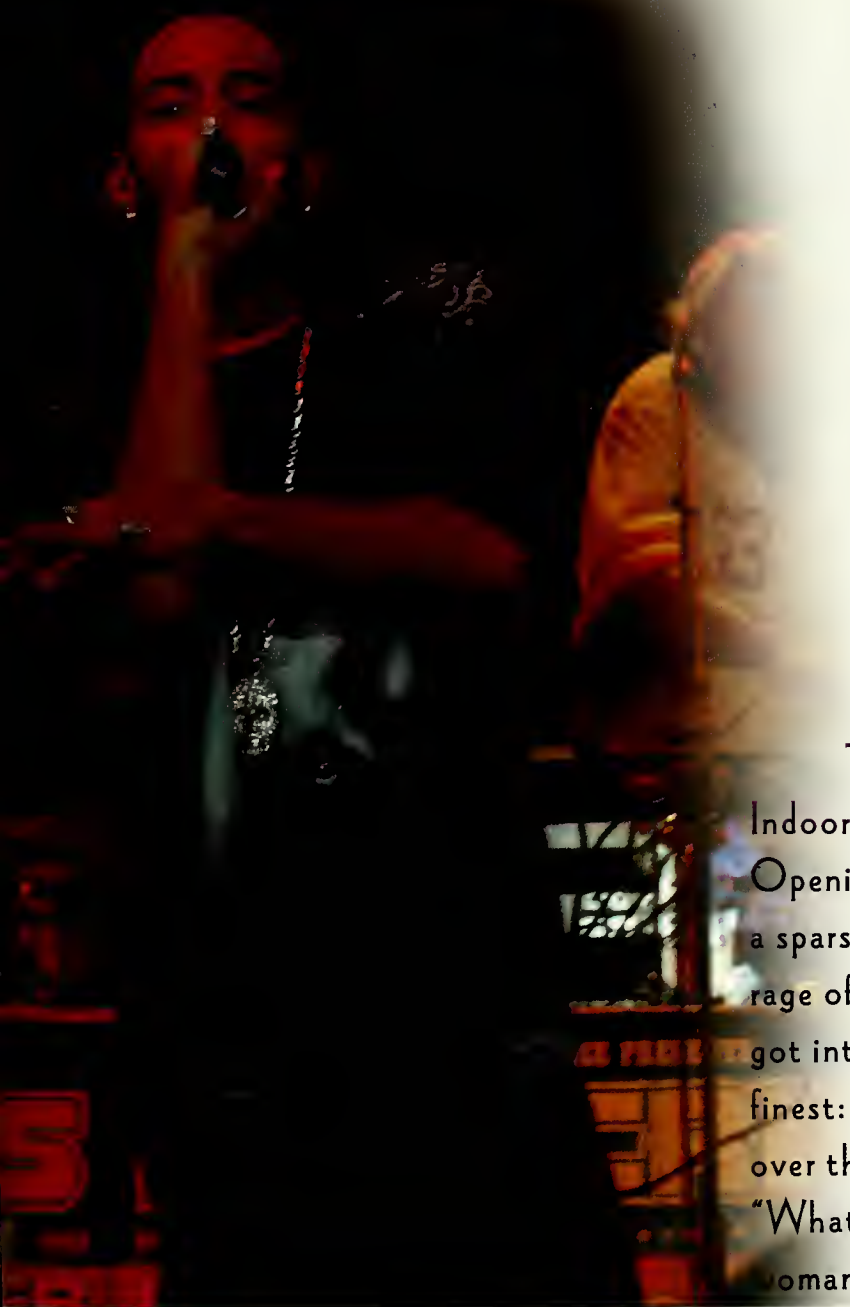

This year's performance featured traditional pieces like "Singing in the Rain," some fast modern pieces, as well as guest appearances by members of groups like Dance Slam and DUI.

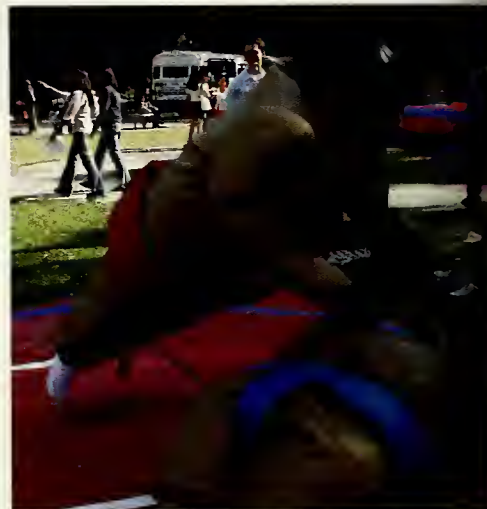

LUDACRIS

sponsored by
Major Attractions

The reknowned rapper rocked Cameron Indoor Stadium with his "Chicken-n-Beer Tour." Opening for Ludacris was Field Mob. Though a sparse crowd could be attributed to the barrage of midterms, those who did attend definitely got into the music. Ladies came dressed in their finest: fishnets, knee-high boots, thongs peeking over their jeans, and wifebeaters reading, "(919)," "What's Ur Fantasy?" and "Luda, make me a woman (complemented by a cherry icon)!"

OKTOBERFEST

sponsored by Duke University Union

Duke celebrated its own version of the German festival of beer with musicians, local vendors, games, bratwursts and drinks on four points.

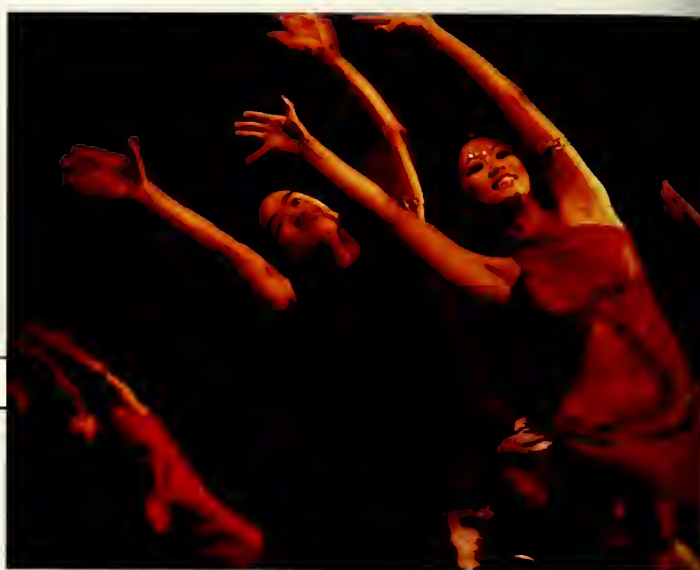

SPRINGTER- NATIONAL

sponsored by the International Association

As part of the "Around the World in Seven Days" series of events, the annual Friday afternoon festivities celebrated the various cultures at Duke and in the world. Students set up tables representing different countries, from which they distributed free t-shirts or sold jewelry and bubble tea. Local vendors also packed the Chapel Quad, offering ethnic foods, handmade accessories and other crafts and services. Student groups, as well as musicians and dancers based in the Triangle area, took the stage in displays of both traditional and contemporary cultural performances.

AWAAZ

sponsored by Diya

"Let's Turn It Up" - this year's theme echoed the vibrance of the costumes, the loudness of the audience's cheers and the historic success of this event. From its humble beginnings in the Giles Dormitory sixteen years ago, Awaaz has evolved into a highly acclaimed, two-night, cultural extravaganza. The evening's fashion show, music, spoken word and dances exemplified South Asian traditions of the past and present.

STREETFAIR

sponsored by Central Campus Council

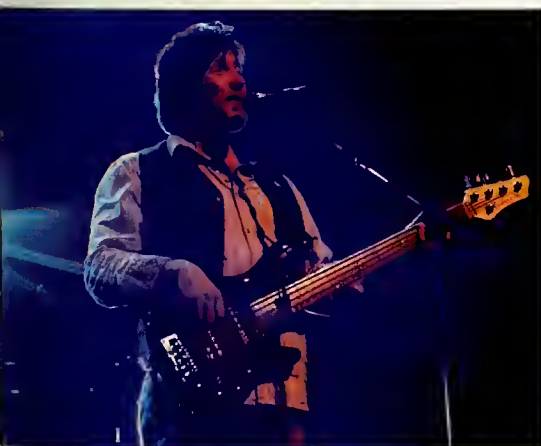

Central Campus residents enjoyed a Saturday afternoon of food and fun. The customary inflatable games and American Gladiators-style jousting were accompanied by other activities like mini golf and sumo-inspired, tackle football.

With an English album, six albums in Yiddish and more than 40 albums in Hebrew, Alberstein has been dubbed the most significant female musician in Israel's history. "If we have a true folk singer, it is Chava Alberstein," said Yediot Aharonot, Israel's largest daily newspaper.

CHAVA ALBERSTEIN

Since 1991, moe. has stirred the national music scene with its multifaceted sounds, ranging from funk to jazz to rock. "Crafting tightly wound rock songs for recording has given crucial form and foundation to moe.'s live jams," said Steve Applford of the Los Angeles Times.

MOE.

The sounds of the fall step show shook homecoming weekend. Kappa Alpha Psi Fraternity, Inc put on a classic performance with their kanes and Kane (the bunny). Alpha Phi Alpha Fraternity, Inc and Omega Psi Phi Fraternity, Inc also represented well, but it was Phi Beta Sigma Fraternity, Inc with their sticks who stole the show.

Zeta Phi Beta Sorority, Inc sexed up the audience with an Arabian theme. Lambda Pi Chi Sorority, Inc included the signature moves of the other groups as a tribute to NPHC. The ladies of Delta Sigma Theta Sorority, Inc won the competition with their African Goddess motif.

STEP SHOW

sponsored by National Panhellenic Council

PIPPIN

As Pippin sings, "Gotta find my corner in the sky," the musical theater presentation unfolds a young royal's search for the meaning of life.

THE WIZ

Premiering on Broadway in 1975 with an all-black cast, this rocked-out remix of "The Wizard of Oz" features the same memorable tale of Dorothy, the Tinman, the Lion and the Scarecrow. The gingham frock, full suits of tin and fur and traditional "off to see the wizard" tunes have been replaced by costumes and musical numbers that reflect the The Wiz's modernized twist.

WEST SIDE STORY

A musical interpretation of Shakespeare's Romeo and Juliet, set in the streets of 1950's New York, recounts the tale of two lovers caught in the midst of rivaling high school gangs, the Puerto Rican "Sharks," and the Polish "Jets."

LOVE'S LABOURS LOST

In this late 80's high school nerd version of Shakespeare's romantic comedy the lords of the Chess Club swear off women for academics. Yet they find themselves falling for the French Club ladies. They put on facades, but all is revealed at a masquerade dance.

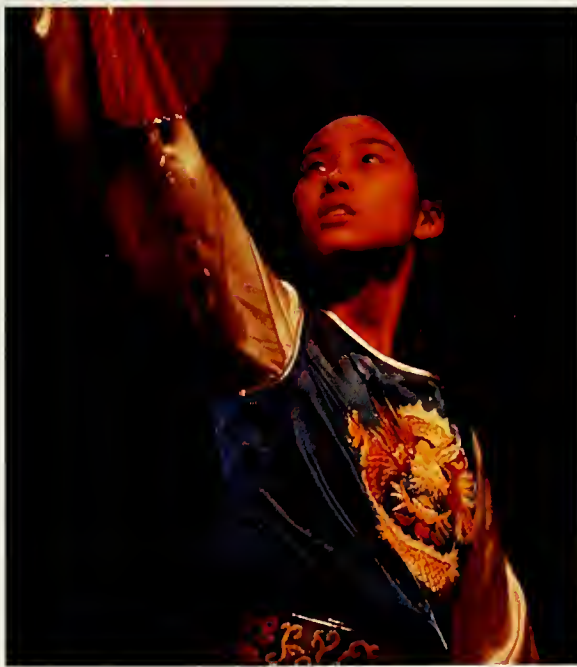

LUNAR NEW YEAR

sponsored by the Asian Students Association

Since its establishment in 1992, the Lunar New Year Festival has celebrated the culture and heritage of Asians and Asian Americans. Honoring the year of the Monkey, the show included musical performances, martial arts, a fashion show, dances and spoken word. This year's theme "Voyages" commemorated the growth and change of the LNY show and the journey from traditional, Asian roots to modern, Asian American culture.

D.U.I.'s BIG SHOW 7

Since its founding in 1977 in GA down-under, the University Improv (DUI) has not only made it through, but has also raised more than $60,000 for charity. 100 percent of the proceeds from the Big Show, their largest event, goes to the Scott Carter Foundation for Pediatric Cancer Research, a foundation formed in honor of the sibling of one of DUI's original members.

"Dean Sue bears no official affiliation to the group, but we've been fortunate enough to successfully solicit her participation in numerous Big Shows," Rob Painter said. "She never shies away from the risqué or the preposterous, and her singular popularity among the students makes her an inevitable hit regardless of what, exactly, it is she does. It's the way she does that thing she does." ■

In her time at Duke, Alana Beard (seen right) has achieved such honors as 2003 National Player of the Year and multiple Associated Press and Kodak All-American awards. She holds the Duke record for career points, field goals made, field goals attempted, steals and double-figure scoring games. Her accomplishments have earned her a place among Duke's greatest basketball players. On January 24, 2004 Alana Beard became the first woman at Duke to have her jersey number retired.

CHANTICLEER SPOTLIGHT

Every year the yearbook asks the student body to nominate seniors, student groups, faculty and staff for the Chanticleer spotlight. The spotlight is intended to highlight the achievements of those who contribute to the Duke community either through service, extra-curricular or academic accomplishments.

Mary Adkins

Playwriter

Director

Dancer

Columnist

Political Researcher

As a public policy major Mary has tied together her passions for both the theater and social issues. She has done everything from political research for the Industrial Areas Foundation in Wilmington to writing a column for the Chronicle. She co-founded Urgent Theatre, a student group dedicated to producing theater that speaks to issues it deems socially pressing, as well as the dance group G.W.A. (Girls With Attitude). Mary has also directed various plays, including The Perks of Disordered Eating (2002) and All of the Above (2004), both of which she co-wrote based on testimonials gathered from Duke women.

Sunny Kishore

Duke Honor Council Chair, Minority Bone Marrow Registry Drive Director (Duke Red Cross), Vertices Editor-in-Chief, Ethos Editor-in-Chief, Duke Student Government Legislator

Sunny spent four years on the Duke Honor Council attempting to shift the undergraduate culture towards "an environment in which learning was valued for its own sake rather than as a stepping stone." He has been part of the implementation of a new honor code and a revised absence policy. Sunny has showed the same commitment to service through the sciences as through ethics. With the bone marrow registry drive he helped raise $5,000 for a two-year old Leukemia patient. He will attend Oxford University to study Immunology in order to focus his career on resolving infectious and global health concerns. "Perform your duty without regard to the fruit of the labor or the reward," he said. "Just work hard and work for mastery of the subject and a positive outcome will be the natural consequence."

...And the list goes on. Sara, one of whom's interests is in children's books, sums up her academic and extracurricular pursuits with a quote from Louis Carroll's Alice in Wonderland. "Alice laughed. 'There's no use in trying,' she said. 'One can't believe in impossible things.' I daresay you haven't had much practise,' said the Queen. 'When I was your age, I always did it for half an hour a day. Why, sometimes, I've believed as many as six impossible things before breakfast!'"

Maggie Schneider

Project WILD, Duke Roadrunners, Wilderness Opportunities for Durham Students

Maggie Schneider was a biology major who pursued her love for the outdoors in everything from extra-curriculars like Project WILD, to a job at the Primate Center. She was studying at the Duke Marine Lab in Beaufort when her life was tragically ended by a hit-and-run drunk driver in 2002. Friends at Duke held a vigil and printed several letters to the editor in the Chronicle in remembrance of her.

Gloria Borges

Senior Class President

Blackburn Literary Festival Co-

Undergraduate Advisory Board Member

In her time at Duke, Gloria brought her favorite author to the campus (Joyce Carol Oates), raised more than $44,000 for the Blackburn Literary Festival, created several solid senior events and still had enough time to enjoy attending them herself. She plans to attend Stanford Law School in the fall of 2004 with a focus on Civil Rights and Immigration Law. "I feel compelled to serve the greater Mexican-American community as well, in both my legal and political endeavors," she said. "Though Civil Rights litigation won't get me a Benz, it will help to change society. The Benz can wait."

Community Service Center

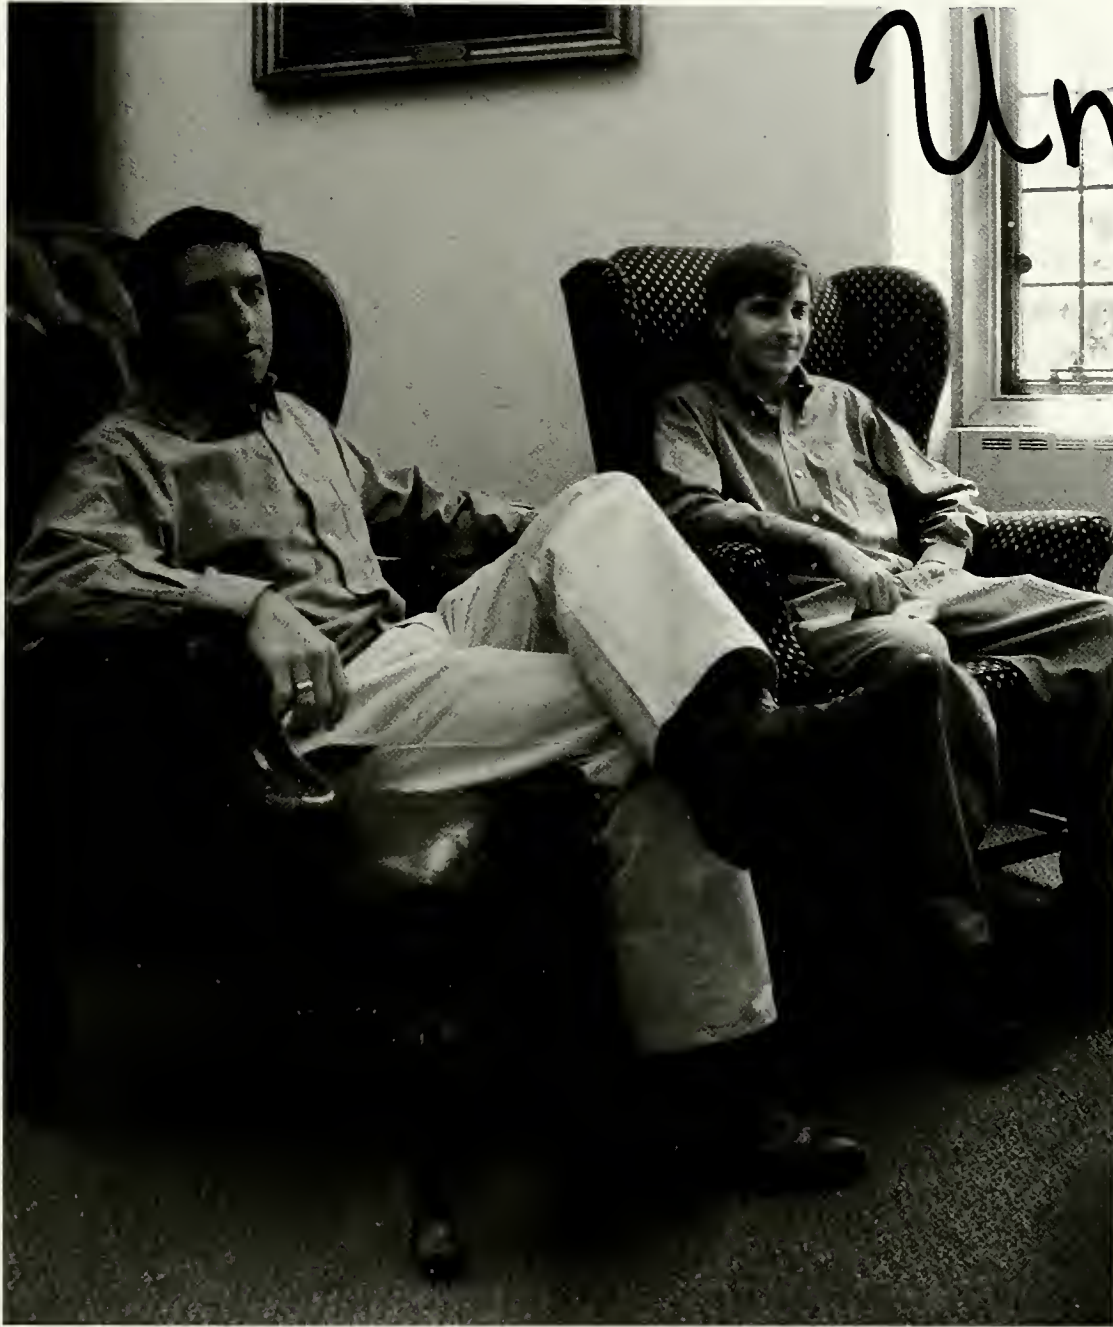

This year the Community Service Center changed their focus from the quantity to quality of events, with more publicity and more student participation than in the recent past. Programs like Social Justice Week encouraged students to question why community service is necessary and to uncover root problems rather than glossing over solutions. The CSC leaders were very happy with the success of their mission of increasing student awareness and action regarding issues affecting the community.

Thread

In order to provide an outlet for leftist voices on campus, a group of undergraduates decided to form this new student publication. Thread is a progressive publication dedicated to social justice issues from campus-wide to world-wide communities. As a way of holding the publication to their original ideas they run the newspaper with communal leadership rather than with the traditional editor-in-chief. Their goal is to raise awareness on campus of pressing current issues.

Duke Conservative Union

The Duke Conservative Union is a student organization that advocates for the conservative ideals of a limited government, individual liberty and free markets. This year the DCU made headlines on campus when it ran an ad in the Chronicle with an open letter to President Keohane detailing the political party registrations of the professors in the major humanities and social sciences departments. The numbers in the letter showed Republicans to be outnumbered 132-8. A barrage of editorials and an administration-sponsored panel discussion were the result.

Duke Anime

Anime is a style of animation developed in Japan often having mature and complicated themes. They range in genre from science fiction to romantic comedy. The Duke Anime Club has consistently grown in size over the past few years. They offer free movie screenings, events and debates showcasing Anime culture. They also offer access to and discussions about manga, Japanese comic books with a distinctive cultural style.

Defining Movement

Defining Movement, commonly called Defmo, is a dance group focused on promoting multiculturalism, service and community arts. Their dance styles range from ballet to hip-hop. "We simply wanted to create a group that would manifest multiculturalism by its very existence. So we combined our passion for dance with our desire to serve the community," said Christina Chang, co-founder of the group. Next year they plan to continue to explore new dance styles and challenge preconceived notions about different cultures and artistic styles. They are also planning a dance workshop for local children, as well as continuing to support benefit organizations through their performances.

Angie Thornburg

Staff Specialist, Student Organizations Financial Team

Well-known for her helpfulness in clearing up murky financial situations, Angie Thornburg is a perennial favorite among student leaders. Such can be attested to by the endless line of students waiting outside her door for their turn to get her help and advice each day. This year Angie received the Presidential Meritorious Award for her outstanding service to university students and staff. "Students keep coming going all the time," said Angie. "I love working with students. They come first with everything."

Julia Anderson

Chick-Fil-A Cashier

Julia Anderson's smiling face has become very familiar on Duke's campus. This coming September she will have been working here for 20 years. Students love her for her positive attitude. Julia, who is currently taking classes herself, identifies with the challenges and need for encouragement that students often face. "Knowing that I at least brightened somebody's day is the most rewarding part," Julia said. "When I see a person not smiling, I try to brighten their day. Sometimes school can be really challenging and they just need some encouragement."

Rafael Perez

McDonald's Store Manager

For Rafael Perez, customers offer the greatest challenges as well as the greatest rewards. In working at McDonald's for the past three years he has dealt with all different tempers, but he has also had the opportunity to meet many people often from different countries and cultures. At Duke he has gotten to know many of his regular customers well enough to know their names, what classes they were taking, and of course, their usual orders. "Duke students are the best," said Rafael. "The level of education is very high and they're friendly. They're not impatient. Treat people well, and they'll treat you well." Rafael's TLC approach to service helped his McDonald's score the top ranking in the Dining Services Performance Assessment for Culinary Excellence.

Susan
Tifft

Patterson Professor of the Practice of Public Policy and Journalism

Having been a Duke student herself in the early 1970's, Professor Tifft has returned to "pay it forward." "Several faculty members made a real difference in my life. I hope I do the same with some of my students now," she said. Professor Tifft commutes to campus from New York City every week to teach. Before becoming a professor she worked for about ten years at TIME as a writer and editor. She has also co-authored a biography of the family that has owned The New York Times for more than a century. "I believe passionately in the importance of news. In the age in which we live - an age of P., propoganda, shout TV and spin - I want students to learn how to analyze critically what they read, see and hear," she said.

Hae-Young Kim

Assistant Professor of the Practice of Korean

Currently the only faculty member teaching Korean, Hae-Young Kim has continuously been working to develop the university's Korean program since coming to Duke. She describes her experience at Duke as an overall good one, though she would like to see Duke students break away from the typically diligently focused track and broaden their scope of classes and discipline while at Duke.

Diane Nelson

Director of Undergraduate Studies, Associate Professor of Cultural Anthropology

From "gringa hunting" to taking over the ROTC building to carrying buckets of water up stairs, Diane Nelson's students often learn to embody the experiences of others outside the classroom. Since the 1980's, Professor Nelson has focused her fieldwork on the culture and social movements in Guatemala. She has written her research for publication several times, including the book A Finger in the Wound: Body Politics in Quincentennial Guatemala.

YEAR IN REVIEW

GOVERNOR SCHWARZENEGGER

SIGMA CHI "VIVA MEXICO" PARTY

On September 13, 2003, Sigma Chi fraternity held a "Viva Mexico" themed party, which included invitations in the form of expired green cards and a border control at the door. The Latino community was outraged at the incident and the lack of importance others were placing on it. Students presented a list of demands to the university administration. They responded by establishing a regular meeting between Vice President for Student Affairs, Larry Moneta, student affairs administrators and the Presidents' Council. The office of the Dean of Students also drafted a letter outlining the Community Standard and circumstances that call for disciplinary action.

HURRICANE ISABEL

Hurricane Isabel hit the North Carolina coast on September 18, 2003, causing major power outages and property damage along the coast. The university did not cancel classes until after 3 P.M., leaving many students questioning why the decision came so late. "I was walking back from BME lecture to Main West, and a tree branch fell just behind me, right where I had walked, a few seconds [earlier]," said student Xander Chen.

APPOINTMENT OF RICHARD BRODHEAD

On December 12, 2003, the Board of Trustees named Richard Brodhead as the university's ninth president, successor of President Nan Keohane. "Duke is one of the handful of top universities in the world, in all, and if I went anywhere, it would only be somewhere like that," said Brodhead. Brodhead was dean at Yale College and an A. Bartlett Giamatti professor of English at Yale University before coming to Duke.

SADDAM'S CAPTURE

Captured former Iraqi leader Saddam Hussein speaks in Baghdad Sunday, December 14, 2003 in this image from television. Top U.S. administrator in Iraq, L. Paul Bremer, confirmed the capture of Saddam Hussein in a dirt hole under a farmhouse near Hussein's hometown of Tikrit, eight months after the fall of Baghdad. Troops also found weapons and money with the former dictator.

HIRING OF COACH ROOF

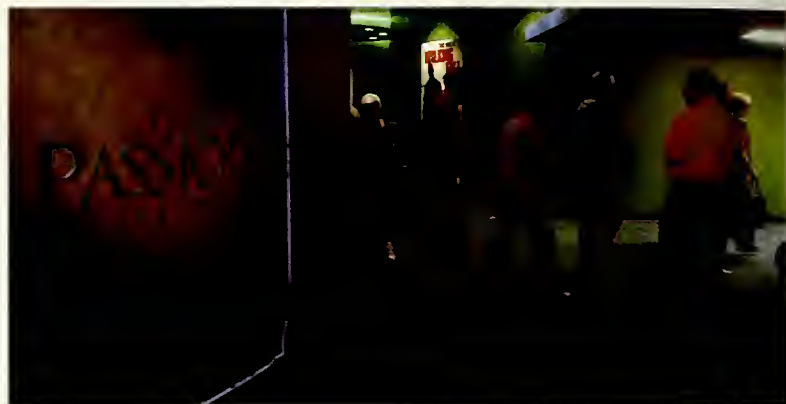

Head football coach Carl Franks was fired October 19, 2003. He had a 7-45 record in his five-year career at Duke. "There's more talent on this team than what we're showing on the football field," said Joe Alleva, athletic director. Defensive coordinator Ted Roof served as the interim head coach as a search for a replacement began. Producing immediate results, such as a 30-22 victory over rival UNC, Roof was later hired as the new football coach.

MAD COW DISEASE

On December 23, 2003, the U.S. government announced that a dairy cow in Washington State was infected with mad cow disease. Meat from the cow had been processed leaving many Americans wondering if they had gotten the infected meat. The scare caused an increase in the number of requests for vegetarian starter kits.

THE PASSION OF THE CHRIST

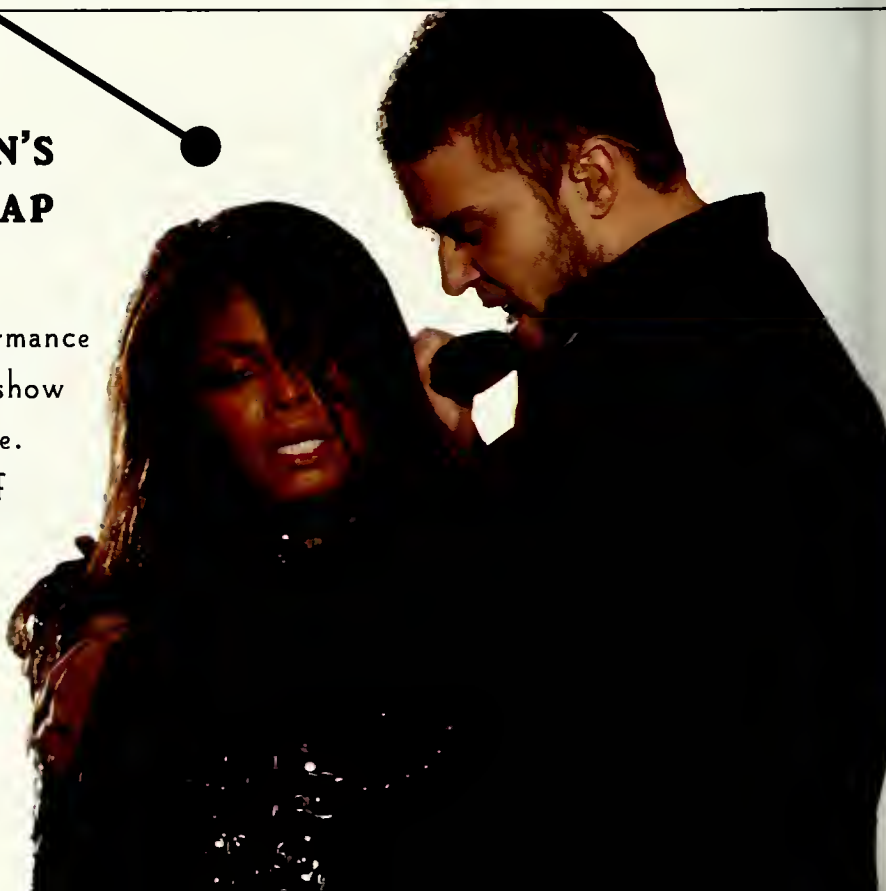

Moviegoers stream into an afternoon showing of director Mel Gibson's "The Passion of the Christ" on February 25, 2004. Church groups from the area bought out most of the tickets for screenings of the controversial movie's opening day. The movie, which chronicles the suffering of Jesus from the Last Supper to the crucifixion, stirred up a lot of controversy following its release. It has been criticized for its graphic portrayal of the violence Jesus faced in his last days. The Passion of the Christ grossed $83.3 million in its opening weekend, the sixth biggest opening of all time.

JANET JACKSON'S SUPER BOWL MISHAP

Super Bowl XXXVIII aired on CBS on February 1, 2004, featuring a half-time performance by Janet Jackson and Justin Timberlake. The show was viewed by an estimated 140 million people. At the end of their duet Timberlake ripped off a part of Jackson's corset exposing her right breast, which was partially obscured by a sun-shaped nipple decoration. An apology was later issued by both parties. The incident prompted major changes to the way performers air live shows.

CURRICULUM 2000 CHANGES

On March 4, 2004 the Academic Council approved the changes recommended by a review committee to the Curriculum 2000 requirements. "The key principle was to simplify the curriculum in a way that would offer students more degrees of freedom in choosing courses, to clarify the conceptual goals of the curriculum while at the same time maintaining the intellectual framework originally articulated for Curriculum 2000," said Steve Nowicki, chair of the Curriculum 2000 committee. The changes included a reduction in the number of required courses fulfilling the Areas of Knowledge and Modes of Inquiry designations.

WORLD'S LARGEST PILLOW FIGHT

A group of 1,076 people gathered on the Main West Quadrangle in hopes of breaking the record for the world's largest pillow fight on March 4, 2004. One week after Duke students set the unofficial record, students at the United Kingdom's University of Warwick topped it with a 1,308-person pillow fight.

THE CHANTICLEER

"Every morning I ask God to help me suffer fools gladly, but some fools present more of a challenge than even the Good Lord can overcome. I call them 'lightning bugs.' They think they are lighting up the whole world when the only thing they are really doing is showing their butts."

-Buck Talman

We thank him for believing in us these 47 years, and for helping us overcome our own "lightning bugs" in order to continue to record and preserve
Duke's undergraduate memories.
